

Friends & Family Day Survey Review

Summary

After months of hard work, we finally launched our new menu tablets! As a reminder, we implemented these tablets in an effort to create more efficient procedures, assist customers with quick & easy ordering options, reduce burnout amongst staff, and reduce sunk costs from comped meals. Overall, this project has been successful! We have seen major improvement in all of these areas, with only a few goals not being directly met. Today we will be reviewing the survey results from our Friends and Family trial run this past weekend. Most notably, we will be going over customer satisfaction, and kitchen-to-table accuracy.

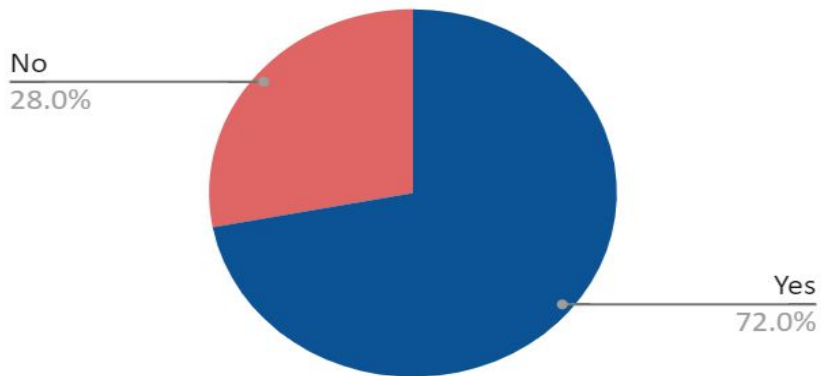

Overview

The main items we wanted to test were:

Evaluation Questions	Evaluation Indicators
Is the kitchen-to-table wait time decreasing?	Average ticket to table time reduced by 30 minutes
Are the tablets easy to use?	Customers are only taking a minute to checkout/pay
Are the tablets increasing service speed decreasing wait times in the lobby?	Average wait time for customers in lobby reduced to sub-10 minutes
What are the most common participant reactions?	less the 5% of customers per week experience technical issues
How often are meals being sent back to the kitchen and being remade due to being inaccurate?	A 98% ticket accuracy

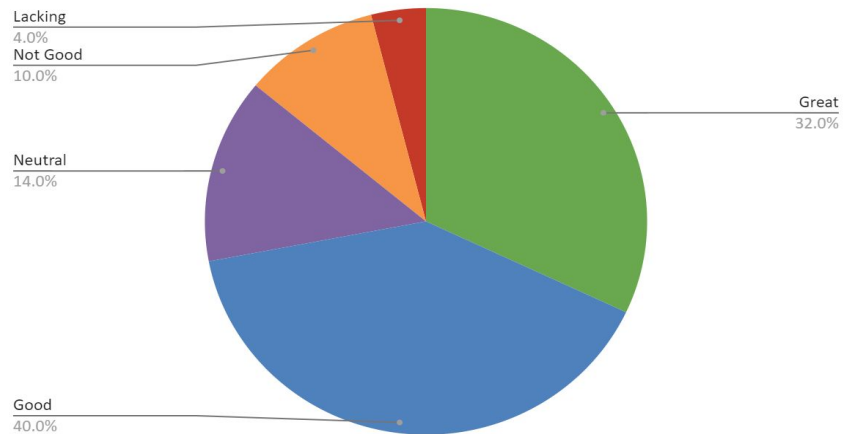

Findings

Percent meals served as ordered

Out of the participants who said “No”, 43% was because the meal delivered to their table either was not what they ordered, or did not have the correct customizations.

Overall Tablet Experience

78% of customers rated the tablets ease of use as "Neutral" or above

Next Steps

TABLET MAINTENANCE/CARE PRACTICES

Some of the technical issues we were seeing, such as screens freezing, tickets not registering meal customization, may also be solved once we have the new, updated tablets in a couple months - as they were delayed due to storms overseas.

In order to mitigate some of the technical issues we had previously seen, I'd recommend:

- Putting in a procedure to perform routine maintenance on the tablets in order to ensure software is up-to-date
- Include tablets in Restaurant closing procedures to ensure they are charging overnight

Next Steps

BOH TICKET EFFICIENCY PRACTICES

BOH Staff is currently implementing new standards of procedure in order to accommodate the new ticket system. Providing them with a little extra support until they can run it perfectly smoothly should reduce kitchen-to-table delivery times, in turn decreasing overall table turn time.
